DON SEITZ DENOUNCES MOVIE TACTICS
Don C. Seitz, associate editor of "Outlook," told a motion picture forum luncheon of the National council of women of the United States recently that he had found that all of the bodies created to improve the movie industry have been headed by the hands of the movie industry and "the attempts to raise the morals of the films merely camouflage."

"The motion picture industry has but one standard and that is the filling of seats in every theatre," he said. "One of the chief crimes of the movies is the bait they hold out to little children to lure them into those infernos on the streets. Even such tactics are used to deliberately display pictures containing suggestive and degrading scenes to children it is high time that someone should be hanged."

Mechanic Falls 1320; Rollers 1268
The Norway Steam Rollers went down in the mighty rush of the Mechanic Falls Pin Crushers at McCready's alley, Tuesday evening. A margin of 62 pins was the medal captured by the visitors in the three string match, that featured high and low rolling in one grand exhibition!

The Crushers led with a big end of the first string and gained steadily during the frays. Somehow the Rollers failed to get their joints working properly so left many pins standing that generally got knocked cold.

A return match is expected soon. Following is the summary:

NATURE CLUB ENJOYED SPECIAL SPEAKER
Mrs. Bertha Noyes was hostess at the November meeting of the Twin Town Nature Club, Monday evening. The Noyes-Partridge camp on the shore of Lake Umbagog was an ideal place for a group gathered in the afternoon and a picnic supper was eaten in the main room, coffee being served by the hostess.

Early in the evening other members assembled to the number of thirty-two and made merry with the aid of a liberal sprinkling of barbecues.

Albert D. Park, president of the Club, was in charge during the preliminary meeting that opened with the collection of roll call was greeted with quotations referring to trees. Minutes of the October meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Flora Webster, and the speaker Henry Davis Nadig of New York and Errol, N. H., was introduced.

Mr. Nadig discussed a number of nature poets and explained many of the beautiful thoughts and worthwhile things concealed in their writings. He gave the group a sketch of the life of Vincent Millay, Robert Frost and Walt Whitman, and read a number of their writings bearing directly on nature. A poem, "Mending the Old Stone Wall" was especially suggestive and about fifteen minutes.

A social hour followed and a contest of naming trees was won by Mrs. Cora Cummings. Another contest taxing the memory for names of flowers was won by Mrs. J. H. B. of Portland. Appropriate prizes were given. The hostesses served refreshments.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Park, South Paris, on December 2.

BOXING MATCHES START
The American Legion of Norway will open their boxing season in this vicinity with four bouts at American Legion Hall, Friday evening, Nov. 8. Tom Connors of this town will be the third man in the ring.

According to the program, Fighting Cloutier and Young Blouin of Lewiston will top the card in the main bout. Both are said to be classy with gloves and can match about anything for their weight.

In the semi-final, Al Jordan and Johnnie Walker expect to mix 'em up. They are well known face tappers and due for a regular three-ring circus.

The preliminary will be handled by McAllister and Blossom. They are good enough for a higher place on the card, but for this show do promise to make a real outburst for the fight.

Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

Another gloomy sign of approaching winter-storms in the Advertiser office. The weather has been so stormy and the place is deserted.

Watch out for the Puzzle Page and that page in the Advertiser. The winners of the legal opening for trapping the traps were hauled in.

A number of local trappers not familiar with the law went into action Nov. 15, and on November 15, is the legal opening for trapping the traps were hauled in.

Mr. M. Stuart of Harrison paid us a visit in town, Tuesday. Mr. Stuart is a busy man this year, with his business and up to date, has been in the town since last May.

He has tasted deer meat from the woods. It arrived via Phil Brown, a local hunter, and was very good. He did come through the woods in the morning.

Mr. W. S. Sargent says, "The memory of the winter is long with the campers. It has been landed at one of the best of the best and other preparations for the winter are underway. I predict a very early and busy season for 1930."

Mr. Sargent should be an active member of the W. S. S. Club. He whittles when he is in the woods, and has fashioned some beautiful things. Each piece is a work of art. His tools were a set of hand saws.

Mr. Sargent has a supply of Christmas cards for your selection. He has a large stock of cards, printed in the best of the best, and has a large stock of cards, printed in the best of the best, and has a large stock of cards, printed in the best of the best.

The Soul No Myth

Part 1
By C. F. Whitman

"One question more than others all men ask is: 'What is the soul?' It is as breathless as star and sun. What fate awaits us when we die?"

The great criminal lawyer, Mr. Clarence Darrow of Chicago, had an article in one of the magazines a year ago in which he argued—but produced no evidence to substantiate it—that the soul of man was a myth. I've had it in mind ever since reading his statements to give my own views upon the subject as soon as the sketches on the public men I have known were completed. And now I join issue with him on his own ground, thus avoiding any religious aspect of the case.

Not to make this sketch too lengthy it will be divided into two parts. The first proposition is that man is a dual being—both a physical and a spiritual body. And here it may be said that the two wisest men and the two greatest thinkers of all recorded time taught this doctrine. I will quote enough from the reputed sayings and writings of each as authority for this statement.

"Death is merely the separation of soul and body. The soul is uncomposited, incorporeal, invisible and therefore indissoluble and immortal." (Socrates)

"Then shall the dust" (the body at death) "return to the earth as it was, and the spirit shall return to God who gave it." (Solomon)

"The human soul is an actuality. In it there is something which has no physical substratum and which has come in from without and which belongs to the ethereal essence of the universe." (Aristotle)

Thomas Aquinas quotes authority that Aristotle believed in the immortality of the soul.

In a private prayer left at his death, Francis Bacon concluded with these words: "O Lord receive me into thy bosom or guide me in the ways." In the "Two Gentlemen of Verona," first published in 1623 is this: "And there I'll rest as after much turmoil a blessed soul doth in Elysium."

These are great authorities indeed. Where are there any whose judgments should have greater weight. Let me put here Mr. Darrow's ideas of what a curious and nonsensical being he makes a conscious man out to be.

"The thing we call life is nothing other than a state of equilibrium between the two forces of nature—the one that builds up and the one that tears down." Aha, a new name—"Equilibrium!"

I cannot forbear to state here that the Greek name for man—anthropos—means he who looks upward. Anyone who has noted Mr. Darrow's pictured visage—rugged, massive, downcast and unsympathetic—would see that this term would scarcely apply to him.

And who do we, who are not scientists or great thinkers, know or might know about the soul?

Take a man weighing some 175 pounds to illustrate. Since a something cannot be consciously moved and intelligently controlled by a no thing or nothing or even by an "equilibrium," there is an active, knowing force or energy within the physical body that moves and controls it. It has power. It is consciousness.

It has reason. It can act or not act. Although we cannot see it we know it is there and therefore it must have form and shape. And this form and shape must of necessity conform to the physical body, since every part of it is moved and controlled by the intelligent part of the soul located in the head. It would seem that by mere "equilibrium" there would be just as much sense in the body as there is in the head. No, no, no, Uncle Darrow, your "equilibrium" doesn't fit the conditions at all. It won't account for consciousness and reason.

THE RED CROSS FLAG
The Red Cross Flag belongs to every nation in the world. The Red Cross, the emblem of service, is made of five squares. The one in the center unites in love the four others that reach out to the north, south, east, and west. This, as you see, embraces the world, and this flag is honored and loved by all the people in the world.

Our country has two flags—the Stars and Stripes and the Red Cross Flag. Our flag stands for "Freedom" and the Red Cross Flag for "Service." We should honor and love the Red Cross, and serve under the Red Cross Flag.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

This is a true story that happened in a town in Iowa.

A man entered a store and made a small purchase. As the merchant was wrapping it up for him the customer pointed to a package under his arm and said:

"I wonder if you would mind wrapping this up a little better for me. It got kinda damaged in shipping."

"Not at all," said the merchant, "What have you been getting?"

"Some kind of patented salt I've been for hire and 50,247 trucks. During that period licenses were issued to 207,519 operators and 16,146 chauffeurs.

For the corresponding period last year 135,509 passenger cars, 2,019 passenger cars for hire and 27,212 trucks were registered. For this same period licenses were issued to 195,208 operators and 6,132 chauffeurs.

The notable increase in the number of chauffeurs' licenses issued this year is due to the revised law which requires chauffeurs' licenses for "any person who operates a motor vehicle other than his own, and who directly or indirectly, receives compensation for any work or services in connection therewith."

After cutting, season your green fuelwood. To season rapidly wood should be piled or "ricked up" in narrow long piles exposed fully to sun and wind and protected against rain. A woodshed is a good investment, particularly if built with a good overhanging roof and with an open or striped section all the way around a foot or two higher than the floor to provide for air ventilation.

Automobile Tax System

COMPUTE YOUR TAX FOR 1930 BY AID OF FOLLOWING TABLE

All car owners must pay the excise tax to the collector of taxes before they can receive their 1930 registration plates. The excise tax is based on the original list price on the car with the rate of tax varying from 3-10 of 1 percent to 3-10 percent, according to the age of the car. The car owner is required to fill out an application blank at the office of the tax collector, giving the make and type of his car, the year of manufacture and the serial and engine numbers, together with the list price. The amount of the tax is then reckoned according to the table given, below. On payment of the tax, the taxpayers receive two receipts, one of which is to be included with his application for registration, and the other to be retained for his own records. The excise tax table follows:

Boston Shows 70 Per Cent. Increase in EIGHTS!

Facts just obtained from 28 representative American cities indicate conclusively that the motoring public prefers the Eight to all other engine types. Take Boston as an example: for the first 8 months of 1929, new cars with list prices above $1,000 showed a 70 per cent increase in Eights and a 21 per cent decrease in Sixes!

At the famous Paris Salon this fall, 44 makes of eight cylinder cars were exhibited, compared with 27 last year. Studebaker, world's largest producer of Eights, two years ago
